CHARLES P. MORSE, Treasurer.

Pembroke, March, 1888.

I hereby certify that I have examined the accounts of the treasurer of the school board for 1887-'88, and find the same duly vouched and correctly cast, and a balance in favor of the district of sixty-five dollars and fifty-six cents ($65.56).

MOODY K. WILSON, Auditor.

The number of children in town between the ages of 5 and 15, as returned by the selectmen, is,—boys, 210; girls, 194;—whole number, 404.

In accordance with a vote of the town to furnish free textbooks, we assumed the authority vested in us as school board to select and furnish the same to all its scholars. We assumed the responsibility with reluctance, yet with a determination that you should have not only our judgment, but that of the most successful educators. At the outset we were so fortunate as to secure the assistance of Superintendent Buck, which enabled us not only to procure the best books in season for the opening of the spring term, but also to inaugurate a method of teaching which, if continued and perfected, must be instrumental in doing much good.

The first step necessary to get out of the old ruts and traditions of the past, and place ourselves in line for new and better work, was to discard those books which repress independent thought and investigation. With the exception of geography, we made a complete change. We should have been glad to have added supplemental books in reading and numbers, had our funds permitted. Poor reading is a general fault throughout the town, and is perhaps the poorest work we do. In most cases it seems to be an exercise for pronouncing or spelling the words as rapidly as possible, rather than one for naturalness of expression and purity of tone. Children soon get wearied of reading the same old books, which they already know by heart, and doubtless in this way fall into many vicious habits, such as reading rapidly and indistinctly. Supplementary books to the readers have been found to be a good remedy for these faults, and we therefore recommend their introduction.

Music from chart work was introduced into our schools the first of the second term, and we were pleased to note the interest which some of our teachers took in this work, and the success which crowned their efforts. If there be any sceptics, who do not believe that music can be taught without a professional instructor, they should have visited our village schools at their closing exercises. We know now, if we were in doubt before, that it can be taught with great success and profit. It would, however, be of great advantage to both teacher and pupil if our schools could be visited by a professional teacher, if only for twice a term. The proper arrangements could be effected at a small expense, and we would recommend a small appropriation for that purpose. As soon as sufficient progress has been made in chart work, music books can be taken in connection therewith, which affords much interest and pleasure. This has already been done in some schools at individual expense. A small appropriation would enable us to supply these books.

We have introduced music, not to trespass upon the time of the school, but simply as an exercise to be conducted for a few minutes each day, to rest the weary workers, and give them renewed zeal and energy for the labors before them.

There are many difficulties that beset the path of superintendent and teacher, but none more difficult to counteract, or injurious to real progress and true development, than the indisposition to do thorough work. It is all-important that the fundamental principles which we get in our common schools should be thoroughly learned and mastered ; and in these steps our progress must be slow and sure. We would say, foster, then, the sentiment that the teacher should be the best judge of what the child can and should do. We dwell upon this subject because in every school the spirit of impatience to pass from one subject to another before qualified is ever present, and this feeling is also too often sympathized in by the community at large. Would that the motto " Make haste slowly " were inscribed in every school-room, and indelibly impressed upon every heart.

We are informed that the Parochial school will be opened before the beginning of another term. Many will doubtless attend there instead of our village schools. We shall, in that case, discontinue the annex, and then have accommodations for those who might attend from the street. We would like you to anticipate this change, and take public action in regard thereto. This year marks an epoch in the history of our schools. Save one week, we have had throughout town nine months' schooling, which is as long as the city schools ; been provided with free text-books, charts, &c. ; and, after one year's trial, we feel confident that we are now in line for most effective work.

With the best conditions established, there is a pressing need of constant supervision. Superintendency is a trade, to be learned and followed upon business principles, and ought to engross one's whole time and attention. To this end, that we might have such service, we would most heartily favor some law enacted, if necessary, so that adjoining towns might unite in having a common superintendent. We could then have as good service in this respect as elsewhere, at minimum expense, and make greater progress in school-work.

Perhaps there is no exercise, in proportion to its importance and practical utility, so much neglected as composition work. It should be a daily exercise from almost the first period of school-life to its close. The child beginning thus early to acquire habits of observation, and expressing its thoughts in a logical manner, soon becomes an easy and ready writer: what is now a drudgery becomes a pleasure. At the same time can be taught most effectively spelling, capitalization, pronunciation, and even grammar itself. Hand in hand this work should go together. It is our purpose to require systematic work in this direction in the future.
